THIS the biggest year that Wall Street ever saw, thus far makes 1927 alone hold the record look like a "slack year." So far 1928 has sold [illegible] more shares than were sold in the same period of 1927.

• • •

CONSIDER how American values [illegible] before you decide that we [illegible] the maximum. On Thursday the total value of General Motors [illegible] rising to $163 a share, increased $[illegible].

The [illegible] seven times as much as the United States paid for the whole Mississippi Valley when it made the Louisiana Purchase deal with Spain 125 years ago. And it is 13 times what Seward paid for Alaska. They called that purchase "Seward's Folly." Don't sell this country short. You never can tell what things will be worth. Prices go up and go down, but mainly UP in the long run.

LINDBERGH renders service to aviation by inviting all senators and representatives to fly with him. He would take congressmen up 10 at a time, in an army or navy plane, to show them about how a plane runs itself, tell them how he once flew from St. Louis to Springfield without touching "the stick." If Congress would be made to KNOW OF ITS OWN KNOWLEDGE that flying is a reality, and especially if Lindbergh could take them in an army machine and drop a few harmless imitation bombs as he [illegible] the country might spend a few dollars on air defense.

INTERNATIONAL wine growers in Paris ask each country to appoint its experts to recommend moderate use of wine "as a tonic restorative." The most highly civilized races, Greek, Roman, Italian, French, Spanish, English, have used light wines and use them now. Michael Angelo at 80 wrote that he could not have continued his extremely difficult work without the good wines that a nephew sent. He drank plenty of it, several bottles a day.

• • •

WAGNER found that he could not work without wine. He tried vegetarianism and total abstinence. Both interfered with work. The founders of this country, Washington and Jefferson, drank wine. Jeffeffrson imported his wines from France, and advocated taxes on light wine and beer.

BUT this country has decided to forbid the use of wine, making a most interesting experiment with boozy whisky. There will be no official indorsement of wine, no change in the law forbidding it in this country, for many a year. Meanwhile here and there are oases. In California and some other states men that don't like bootleg whisky buy fifty gallons of grape juice for fifty cents a gallon, make two hundred full quarts of wine, enough to last a year, for twenty-five dollars, cheaper than bootleg whisky.

A WAVE in sea water, thirty feet deep, has 5.45 horsepower for every foot of ocean frontage. Where the wave is eight feet high, the horsepower per running foot rises to 25.58. That means for every mile of such sea front 135,002 horsepower. Inventive genius has its opportunity in the problem of harnessing the power commercially.

• • •

IT is estimated that the present average price for power-tide energy going to waste along the shores of this country would be worth sixty billion dollars a year. Power may some day be as cheap as water, almost as cheap as air. Men will eventually find a way to harness the ocean's power, as they are already harnessed the power of the sugars.

SEVEN CARS DAMAGED

Icy Thoroughfares Blamed for Accidents; Many Machines Ditched

Two persons were injured and seven automobiles damaged in traffic accidents which occurred in Marion and vicinity yesterday and today, icy thoroughfares causing most of the mishaps.

The two persons injured were Mrs. Phillip Rogers, Willshire, O., and John Adams, Chillicothe. Both sustained cuts and bruises but their injuries were not regarded as serious.

Many other cars were ditched along roadways throughout the county as a result of the slippery highways and local garages were kept busy answering calls for help.

Car Turns Over

Mrs. Rogers was enroute to Marion with Mr. Rogers from their home in Willshire to attend the United Spanish War Veterans meeting scheduled Sunday at the Marion theater, when their car skidded from the road and overturned in a ditch just east of Kenton. Mr. Rogers was not injured.

Mr. and Mrs. Rogers are the grandparents of Fred Custer, E. George-st.

The accident occurred during the heavy snowstorm that started yesterday morning and continued throughout most of the day.

After the machine had been removed from the ditch by a Kenton wrecker Mr. and Mrs. Rogers proceeded to Marion in their slightly damaged car. During their stay here they are to be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Custer.

John Adams of Chillicothe sustained cuts and bruises and his Ford touring car partly wrecked when it skidded and crashed headon into a Chrysler coupe on the Bucyrus-rd about six and a half miles north of Marion yesterday at the noon hour. The Chrysler was driven by a Fostoria man whose name was

ISOLATION ENDS FOR SNOWBOUND VILLAGE

Aid Comes to Detour, Mich. from Three Quarters; Excitement Ends

Detour, Mich., March 17—Detour, snowbound for 17 days sat back in comfort today and discussed the excitement which marked their rescue from famine-threatened isolation.

No community was ever more thoroughly rescued, relief having come almost simultaneously from three quarters.

A dog sled, an airplane and a snowmobile brought needed supplies. Today, the 600 inhabitants have food other than salt pork and corn bread: They have tobacco; they are reading and re-reading mail from the outside world and they have the satisfaction of knowing the sick in their midst, Russell Goetz, is being cared for in a Sault Ste. Marie Hospital.

He was taken to Sault Ste. Marie yesterday in the government transport plane which brought supplies and mail here. It was the first plane ever to land in the village and caused great excitement.

The former head of the Bertillon bureau of the police department here is charged with neglect of duty, due to absence from the department for more than a year, and with conduct unbecoming an officer.

Green-Tinted Candies, Cakes and Clay Pipes Tied With Dainty Ribbon Put in Appearance as Marion Observes St. Patrick's Day

ST. PATRICK might have been the patron saint of confectioners and pipe-makers, as far as Marion was concerned today.

For this, dear reader, is St. Patrick's Day, the day of days on the religious calendar for the Irish, the day when those of Irish blood are proud of it and the day when those of no Irish blood adorn themselves with shamrocks, green ribbon and green carnations.

A walk up and down Center-st or Main-st today revealed that the only evidence that the day was dedicated to the great patron of Ireland was green-tinted candies of all shapes and varieties and the elongated variety of clay pipes with a bit of green ribbon bowed about them.

• • •

IN some places St. Patrick's Day is the signal for a celebration as of yore, while in other places, Marion among them, shamrock displaying is the only observance.

In New York the Irish and the Sons of Ireland and all the rest of the Erin Go Bragh societies march down Fifth-av in silk toppers and frock coats to the cheers of the sidewalk-lined crowds.

Even in Columbus the Friendly Sons of Erin step out and down High-st.

But in Marion today there was just a blending of white and green, the white of the snow and the green of the shamrock. And, for something else to say, one without a shamrock or a green necktie would quiz his neighbor, "Where's your green today?" And so on.

• • •

AND, this chronicler having Irish blood in his veins, hearkens back a few years and remembers when St. Patrick's Day was a day of days to us school kids. It meant no school that day. And, not only that, but it also meant a glorious banquet, to our childish minds, banquets such as only the Ancient Order of Hibernians could give.

There were luscious viands and Erin-praising speeches and then everybody forgot his Lenten observances long enough to get out and do the Irish reel and the more modern waltz and two-step.

Those were the days!

And, sure if there wasn't an

SHOW WINDOW ROBBERS TAKE TRAY OF RINGS

Landes Jewelry Store on W. Center-st Scene of Burglary

SIX DIAMONDS IN LOOT

Police Believe Tramps Took Valuables; Trace Tracks to Railroad

Display window robbers paying their first visit to the city in years, early this morning broke a window at the M. L. Landes Jewelry store on W. Center-st and stole jewelry valued at $163.25. A tray of six diamond rings valued at $22.50 each, was included in the articles taken.

The broken window was discovered by a patrolman shortly after 3 o'clock this morning. The proprietor was notified and a preliminary check made showed that goods valued at $28.25 had been taken. Later, however, in removing the diamonds from a safe, Mr. Landes discovered the loss of a tray of rings.

Overlooked Tray

Mr. Landes said this morning he overlooked the tray when he changed the display last night. It is believed the presence of the rings prompted the robbery as a tray of silver and other articles of jewelry were not disturbed. Large and small footprints found beneath the window were traced through a yard on the opposite side of the street and north to the railroads. It is believed the robbery was committed by tramps. What method had been used to break the window was not determined as no stone was found in the vicinity of the window.

The list of articles taken according to a report given police included a wrist watch, a brooch, a compact, three cigar lighters, a watch chain, a necklace and a clock, all valued at $28.25.

TREASURER HELD IN COLUMBUS SHOOTING

Jenkins Confesses Walter Killed During Scuffle After Liquor Party

Columbus, March 17—The city of Columbus was without the services of a treasurer today, and Elmer E. Jenkins was held in jail in connection with the death of Clement Walter, 51, who was shot to death in City Hall early Wednesday morning.

Coroner Murphy returned a verdict of suicide the morning of the shooting. This explanation, however, did not satisfy the victim's father, Bert Walter, city building inspector, and police.

Treasurer Jenkins confessed to police last night that Walter was killed during a scuffle over a pistol. They had been together earlier in the evening, he said, returning to his office in City Hall after taking Walter's father, Bert Walter, city building inspector, to his home.

Call Bootlegger, Women

Jenkins related how Walter called a bootlegger. After several drinks each of the two decided to call a woman of his acquaintance and these two joined the "party," according to the confession.

Soon after midnight, the women were sent home in a taxi. Young Walter had grown quarrelsome and accused Jenkins of taking a $5 bill from his pocket, Jenkins said.

"He was just drunk and looking for trouble," the treasurer declared. "I tried to pacify him but he got more quarrelsome. Suddenly he pulled my revolver from a pigeonhole in my desk, before which we were sitting.

Probe May Result

"I grappled with him and we fought back and forth across the room. The gun was fired twice. Then there was a third shot and Clem crumpled into the chair."

Jenkins declared the gun with Walter's hands fell to the floor after he fired shot. He admitted replacing it in the desk pigeonhole and separating the pair in the struggle.

City Council was to meet today to appoint a new treasurer. A grand "drinking parties" in the City Hall were also rumors. Council met a special session today, but no action was taken on the appointment.

CLOSE SENATE OIL INQUIRY, RETURN HOME

Probers Quit Chicago with Considerable Information About "Gifts"

Chicago, March 17—After revealing Will H. Hays, former Republican national chairman, as a stock market gambler, unearthing an alleged agreement between Republican and Democratic treasurers to conceal their 1923 contributions, finding $2,000 of Harry F. Sinclair's "gift" bonds to the Republican National Committee and uncovering $36,800 in "dummy" Republican contributions, the Senate oil inquiry closed its Chicago sessions today to reconvene next week in Washington.

Several promised sensations were withheld by the Senate Public Lands Sub-Committee while senatorial investigations run down "redhot" clews that are expected to result in startling revelations. The result of these inquiries will be revealed in Washington next week.

Raising of Funds

The modern method of raising Republican campaign funds, as practiced in Chicago, was revealed today before the inquiry closed.

Multi-millionaires were solicited on railroad trains as they rode to their offices from their palatial country homes, according to F. Edson White, wealthy Armour and Co. executive. White said he was solicited on a train by B. A. Eckhart, wealthy miller, who raised funds in 1924 for the late Fred W. Upham, Republican national treasurer.

Philip D. Armour, packing company magnate, was solicited in the same way. White and Armour each gave

F. B. MORRISON RESIGNS POST WITH POWER

Accepts Appointment as Sales Head of General Excavator Co. Here

Frank B. Morrison has resigned his position as vice president and manager of the Power Manufacturing Co. to accept appointment as manager in charge of sales for the General Excavator Co., it was announced today.

The announcement, coming from one of the General Excavator Co. executive offices, states that Mr. Morrison will take charge of his new position Monday.

As manager of sales he succeeds P. J. Lynch, who has held the position for more than a year. Mr. Lynch, it was stated, is returning to the West Coast, where he will give his attention to some large power and contracting work which he has been prominently identified with for a number of years.

No appointment of a successor to Mr. Morrison has been made as yet by the Power Manufacturing Co.

Temporarily in Charge

Direction of the management is temporarily in charge of Albert Craig of Pittsburgh, president of the company, who plans to spend part of his time at the local plant until a permanent manager is selected.

Mr. Morrison severs his official connection with the Power Manufacturing Co. after having been identified actively with the management from the date of its organization in 1911.

The company began operations in Lima and moved its plant to Marion in 1917.

The announcement made from the General Excavator Co. office today included the following statement:

"The volume of business for the General Excavator Co. during the past year has been satisfactory to the officers of the company and despite bad business conditions it seems to the officers as though the business of the General Excavator will be equal or better during the coming year."

BOSSES FOR HOOVER, WILLIS DECLARATION

Senator-Candidate Also Blames Farmers' Ills on Secretary of Commerce

Lancaster, March 17—Asserting that, "without exception, the bosses are on the side of Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover," and attributing "the serious trouble which the farmers have experienced" to "the application of the policies which Secretary Hoover, as food administrator of this country during the World War initiated," U. S. Senator Frank B. Willis declared in an address here this afternoon in furtherance of his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination.

Declaring that "the Republican party will not fail to deal with the problem of agricultural relief," Willis predicted that, "in my judgment, before Congress adjourns, it will enact, and ought to enact, a measure of adequate farm relief."

Accusing hi mof having favored the League of Nations "without reservations," Willis criticised Hoover for having "cordially seconded," he said, "the appeal issued by the late President Woodrow Wilson, in 1918, for "the election of a Democratic congress."

"It is too late in the history of the Republican party for it to tread the paths of cowardice, or nullification," said Willis, touching upon the topic of law enforcement.

BEGIN WORK OF RAISING S-4 ON PONTOONS

Navy Officers Believe Submarine Will Come to Surface Late Today

Provincetown, Mass., March 17—Work of raising the submarine S-4 from the bottom of the ocean off Cape Cod began shortly after 11 o'clock this morning.

Naval officials estimated that the submersible would come to the surface from the ocean bottom 102 feet about 4 p. m.

The first work was examination by the divers of the six pontoons chained to the steel hulk.

The water was drawn from the various chambers and then the work of pumping in air to the air tight compartments of the pontoons and to the locked chambers of the undersea boat began.

20 Hours to Tow Boat

Naval officials estimated that it would take 20 hours, approximately, to tow the boat to Boston once she reached the surface.

The auxiliary salvage fleet and destroyers carrying newspaper men and photographers assembled at Charlestown Navy Yard for a hurried dash to this port.

Of the 40 men who met death in the undersea craft all but eight bodies have been recovered.

Marriage Ceremonies of American Girl and Former Ruler Begin Before Dawn

Nancy Miller Taken into Family of Holkar Before Actual Wedding Service; Barwaha Converted into City of Arabian Nights Splendor

Bombay, India, March 17—Preliminaries to Hindoo marriage of Miss Nancy Ann Miller of Seattle, Wash., and Tukojirao Holkar, Indian prince and former maharajah of Indore, began at 2 o'clock this morning in the latter's palace at Barwaha.

In the middle of the night Miss Miller was aroused by a woman servant and told to dress in ceremonial robes. She was then led to an altar where she was admitted into the Dhangar caste, which placed her on an equality of caste with her husband. Tall candles sputtered upon the altar cloth and moonshine streamed through the high castle windows as the priest droned through the service of elevating the American girl to the caste of her husband.

Following the ceremony there was a pre-nuptial feast for the women of the Dhangar caste. After the former maharajah had partaken of food it was placed upon another plate and passed among the women who ate some of it.

Taken Into Family

Before the actual marriage service, which did not begin until sunset this evening, Miss Miller, or Devi Sharmishta, according to her Hindoo name, was adopted into the Holkar family. After the priests had invoked the blessing of the gods upon the convert the title of her highness, Maharanee Sharmishthabai, was conferred upon her. The former maharajah's family received the bride warmly. Miss Miller wore a cloth of gold headdress and a brilliant magenta saree.

Members of the Holkar family and a few wedding guests witnessed the ceremony, all wearing colorful garments which blazed with precious gems.

Barwaha has been converted into a city of Arabian nights splendor. The houses are decorated and banners floated lazily in the hot sunshine. A

PLAN BARRACKS

Union Miners May Erect Buildings for Families

Columbus, March 17—That barracks are to be erected by the United Mine Workers in Belmont and Jefferson Counties, to house the families of union miners who are being evicted from their homes by eastern Ohio operators, became apparent here today when it was reported that the International Mine Workers organization had contributed $15,000 for such a fund.

Lee Hall, president of the Ohio Mine Workers organization, refused to comment upon the possibility, although he admitted that such a movement was on foot.

It is expected that the families of 300 unemployed union miners will be housed in Belmont County, and a number slightly less, in Jefferson County.

Washington, March 17—A compromise on radio regulation was reached today by a majority of Senate and House conference committees under which the powers of the Federal Radio Commission would be restored and extended for one year.

Refusal of Representatives David, Democrat of Tennessee, and Bland, Democrat of Virginia, to agree to the report, however, presaged another fight on the floor of the House.

Preliminary Steps Taken To Padlock Toledo Cabaret

All the prisoners were released the following day except Charles Jackson, doorman, who was fined $50 and costs. An affidavit, signed by one of the liquor squad, has been obtained by Levy in his petition for an injunction against the cabaret, declaring it a public nuisance.

BUILDING AHEAD OF RECORD DURING 1927

Volume for February Responsible for Situation Early This ear

Washington, March 17—Construction operations, showing a zest that is remarkable at this period of the year, are abreast of the volume of activities reported for the early weeks of record-breaking year of 1927, according to statistics just compiled by the Associated General Contractors of America.

The volume of all types of construction work performed during January and February of this year is equal to the corresponding total recorded for last year. This condition largely is the result of last month's record-breaking activities which reached a volume topping the highest previous February mark, established last year.

Figures covering actual shipments of basic construction materials were used in making the computations, it was stated.

NEW SINK WASHES AND DRIES DISHES

Kohler Co. Engineering Staff Takes Drudgery Out of Kitchen Work

Research and electricity have combined to develop a new kitchen sink which washes the dishes and dries them mechanically. This invention has simplified the housework so much that it is attracting world wide attention.

The new sink is the result of several years work by the Kohler Co. engineering department at Kohler, Wis. and is undoubtedly the most useful commodity recently developed. It is made of white enameled iron and cast in one piece. The dish washing compartment is made on either the right or left hand side to suit conditions. The sink is in the middle compartment and the drain board is on the opposite end.

The dish washing is done by a motor the shaft of which runs through the bottom of the compartment and by means of a spiral screw forces the water through 1,000 holes in a spray tower at high pressure.

The dishes are stationary during the washing and therefore the breakage is less than by the hand method.

Three minutes is all that is required to complete the job and it is done in a thoroughly complete way. With the spray hose the dishes are rinsed with hot water which dries them. This eliminates the use of a dish towel, which, under the old method, gathers food particles and germs.

The construction is so simple and sturdy that the sink is good for a life time and makes pleasure out of the most monotonous work in keeping house. It can be seen on display at The Dreher Supply Co. show rooms, 184 N. Main-st.

Carey, March 17—The A., C. & Y. in this locality has purchased three acres of land south of the "Y" on the Frank Ogg property. A new water tank will be built near the coal dock. More side tracks will be laid and the work train will soon be brought here.

Forty miles of new heavy rail is to be laid into Carey from New London, completing a new line between Akron and Carey.

New concrete bridges are being put in by the bridge men to accommodate the heavy freight engines to be used between Akron and Carey.

CONTRACTS LET FOR 10 HOUSES

Work Is Expected To Be Well Under Way by April 1

In keeping with the progressive spirit of Southwest Marion, 30 new modern homes are to be constructed in Oakland Heights during the coming year, according to an announcement coming today from W. T. Jones, president of the Jones Realty Co. and the man whose belief in this territory made possible this thriving community.

Contracts have already been let for 10 of the proposed structures and it is expected that the remainder will be let before April 1.

Oakland Heights was visualized some 12 years ago by Mr. Jones. At that time many were skeptical. They said "Marion will never reach out to encircle Oakland Heights into its folds." But time passes quickly and those that were skeptical are now sorry for their misjudgment.

They now see that the vision of Mr. Jones was not a dream that was impractical. Now Oakland Heights is one of the choice sections of Marion in which to live. Scores of happy families are now living and enjoying life there in their own homes.

All Conveniences

Oakland Heights now has every convenience offered to anyone in the most modern city. It has lights, water, gas, electricity, paved streets, sidewalks, a public school, churches, a business district and quick transportation, all anyone would desire in a community. Homes are attractive and one is able to raise his family and children away from the confusion and danger of busy traffic.

Oakland Heights is not developed fully. There still is an opportunity to build and own the homes and at the same time make a profitable investment in the path of Marion's logical future growth.

Jones' Comment

Here's Mr. Jones' comment on the future of Oakland Heights:

"I can predict a wonderful future for Oakland Heights. I have seen this prosperous and favorably situated section grow to a community of no mean distinction, from pasture fields and farm lands that were considered, 10 or 12 years ago, beyond the reaches of Marion's possible expansion.

"Southwest Marion's just getting into its strides. The quality of the hundreds of thrifty people who have found happy homes there, their up-and-doing spirit, their civic pride, denote a potential development to a degree that would seem exaggeration now to express.

School Facilities

"The excellent school facilities, the street car service to the heart of the city, the business center meeting the everyday needs, the amusement factor in the beautiful Oakland Theater, the religious influence radiating from the Oakland Evangelical and Fite Memorial Baptist Churches, the wholesome cleanliness of the location, the protective restrictions—these and many other considerations recommended Oakland Heights to worth-while people.

"The movement all over this country is outward from the congested parts of the cities to the open spaces, where the air is pure, where the children can play free from the menace of speeding traffic, where life is really worth living."

This year will see approximately 30 more new homes built in Oakland Heights and occupied by 30 additional happy families.

Miss Rhea King is directing a wonderful work for the Crippled Children of Marion. Eighteen of them are brought in taxis each day to her classroom, at Olney Ave. School. They get a hot dish and a glass of milk every day. Twice a week they get a Massage and Light Treatment. The children range in age from 7 to 15.

Each child has had a thorough examination by Dr. Wilson or Dr. Steinfeldt, State Officials. A corrective treatment has been worked out, and if the parents were unable to pay for it, the state of Ohio provided the funds.

These children are developing physically and mentally. It is a wonderful testimony to Marion's Public School efficiency.

NEW HEATING PLANT PLACED IN SERVICE

Work on Unit at Central Fire Station, S. Prospect-st, Completed

Installation of the heating plant at Central Fire Station has been completed and is now being used to furnish heat for the building. A low fire was kept in the boiler for several days. Yesterday a larger fire was built and the plant put in full operation.

The kitchen, which occupied the room now used for the boiler, will be moved to the room in the northeast corner of the building on the first floor which has been used as a storage for coal. A new concrete floor is being laid and a partition will provide privacy. There will be no diningroom, the kitchen serving both as a diningroom and kitchen.

Part of the labor in installing the plant, was done by firemen of the two crews, who cut all of the holes for pipes and in one case dug a trench ten inches deep and as many inches wide through a solid concrete floor in order to carry the steam pipes to the rear of the workroom.

Will Rogers Says It Is Going To Be Some Job Picking Out 90 Democrats Who Sleep in Pajamas and Know What a Tooth Brush Is For

BY WILL ROGERS

We'll hive to be careful with these delegates

WELL, all I know is just what I read in the papers. Been an awful lot in the papers lately about just who and what is to compose the New York Deligation to the Democratic Convention at Houston. At first they thought well, we will just go ahead and have the regular Deligates like we always have. Then someone got to thinking, "Well they wouldent be the right kind to use down there. Too Kellys, Obriens and Donovens, and Murphys and Izensteins and Levy's and Gumbles. We got to dig up a different gang. Well they started in trying to figure out what style and manner of person to send.

New Territory

They got to inquireing around to find out. But none of Tammany's Braves had ever been to Houston so they couldent speak with much authority on just what type of Politician Houston was most partial to. If they had just had some one who knew it would have been easy, for they have every style politician in the world. So they started in with the basic idea that we got to send people that use their knife only when there is really something to cut. "We got to kinder raid the social register and see if we cant cull a bunch that will knock 'em off their seats in Houston with their social standing. Find people who have spent more time in a drawing room than in a caucus room. If a ward healer shows up and looks like he wants to go, knock him so unconscious he wont come too till after the Deligation have gone."

Try and find ninety Democrats that sleep in pajamas. Be sure there is ninety tooth brushes leave with the Deligation. Watch their language and dont a let a sign of a dialect creep in. Now you may not get ninety of the above type who are bona fide Democrats, but fill out with what dissatified Republicans you can find. They will be so far from home that no one down there will know how they ever voted before.

They started looking for 'em but they was having a tough time filling the bill. Well then the old boys that's been doing all the voting for the Democratic Organization for years, why he heard of all this highbrow stuff, so he yelped, "Say Youze Guys, What de big idea Cull? Us birds was good enough to set all summer in Madison Square garden and listen to the yapping of de Yokels! We voted ourselves black in the face at every precinct for years fer Al! So what's the big idea we don't get to make the tek down to de real noise? We Guys wants to see west of de Hudson jes as bad as you High Hat Blonks."

Can't Find 'Em

Well, with all this percolating around, it kinder made a dent in the main Committee, and they started in to try and salve the "Regulars" over. But in the meantime the "Scouts" had come in and announced that they just couldent find ninety "Highbrows," and that the Republicans that they approached all just through force of habit wanted too much of a fee. So it looked like the high hat idea had fallen through. It looked bad for a typical Tuxedo Deligation. So the Committee got off on another tack, they conceived the idea of trying to get some wealth mixed up in it. When they saw that Intellect was kinder short handed, they made offers to every well known wealthy man to loan his person to them for the duration of the Convention and make Al look like he was coming with the backing of "Big Business."

But "Big Business" was doing so good under Cal that nothing Al could offer them would make them switch. Cal had handed them everything but the mint, and they saw no way that Al could improve on that. But the "Steering" Committee was still resourceful. "Well we have fell down on Intellectuals, and Wealth. What could be the matter with sending some old Time Southerns, that loved the south so much they just couldent stand to stay there and see it suffer, so they moved to New York? You know the south is great on names and tradition, so we can round up a bunch of these old Babies that have still got their long, coat, black hat and string tie."

Times Have Changed

The old Boys hadent been doing much since the Bar days closed, when they used to work off their Southern accent on poor suspecting visitors from south of the Montgomery and Ward line. They used to strike up an acquaintance, and before it ended the other fellow had paid for quite a snack of "Juleps."

You see the Committee was bound to not be represented by the regular voters. Not only the votes of their ninety delegates, but the impression of the Delegates was what they wanted to go over. Houston couldent possibly be hostile to an old decendant of Lee, or Jefferson, all of which could very easily be arranged by a little coaching on history before the Delegation started. Of course these men hadent been allied with Tammany Hall, but for this their first trip to the dear old Southland in years, they could swallow their pride, along with anything else that showed up on the Journey. Their names would loan distinction and prestige that would awe the boys from Arkansaw and Texas. When the New York Deligation was polled and the good old Southern names would follow each other in rotation with never a Hebraic or Gaelic tint to it, it would make the Babtist brethren start to open their eyes and realize that New York might have some good in it after all.

It will make the old Protestant boys realize that these are some of their own Countrymen after all, when they discover that they are not going to mass or Synagogue. "Why they are Christian folks, just like us; they dont go to Church anywhere!"

Course this New York Deligation can only represent them while at the Convention, because they perhaps havent registered to vote in New York for years. But if they make the Deligation look like something for just the duration of the Convention, why the experiment will have worked out. O. K. Lot of the old boys will have to brush up on their southern accent. Its kinder rusty, and is a little overdrawn to what they will hear down south. But its a great idea, sending somebody who dont represent Tammany Hall. I wish America could send somebody to our Conference that dident represent us. We might not lose so much. They are going to have the Deligates introduced to Smith after they get back from the Convention.

They got em busy now memoriring the name.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue headaches, a listless no-good feeling, all out of sorts inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.—Adv.

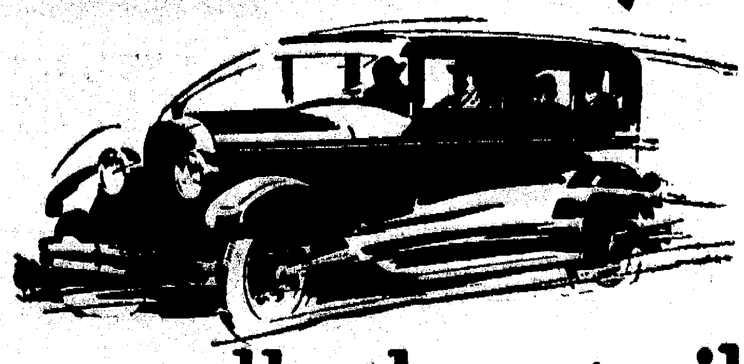
First comes CHRYSLER "72"



.....all others trail

Chrysler "72" performance makes all other performance in its field seem as out-of-date as last year's license plates. All you have to do is to ride in a "72," and drive it to appreciate the difference.

Only Chrysler's great engineering staff and precision manufacturing organization could have developed 75 smooth horse power from an engine of such moderate size.

You can, at will, do 72 miles an hour and more—velvety, easy miles—due to this unique and vibrationless engine with counterweighted seven-bearing crankshaft.

It takes mountain grades at constant acceleration. In traffic, the "72" flashes to the fore with characteristic Chrysler get-away.

Go to any Chrysler salesroom and ask for a "72" demonstration. Drive the car where and as you will. Demonstration will prove to you just how much better the "72" performs.

Illustrious New Chrysler "72"—Two-passenger Coupe (with rumble seat), $1545; Royal Sedan, $1595; Sport Roadster (with rumble seat), $1595; Four-passenger Coupe, $1595; Town Sedan, $1695; Convertible Coupe (with rumble seat), $1745; Crown Sedan, $1795. All prices f. o. b. Detroit, subject to current Federal excise tax. Chrysler dealers are in position to extend the convenience of time payments.

New Chrysler "Red-Head" Engine—designed to take full advantage of high-compression gas, giving 12% greater torque with greater speed, power and hill-climbing ability; standard equipment on all body models of the 112 h. p. Imperial "80," also standard on the roadsters, and available at slight extra cost for other body types, of the "62" and "72." 1128

Announcing a Special Dollar Edition of
THE MAN NOBODY KNOWS
By BRUCE BARTON
Coming, as it does, a few weeks before the Easter Season, the publishing of a new beautiful popular priced edition of this remarkable book is one of the high spots of the Year. For something like three years, "The Man Nobody Knows" has been a continuous "best-seller" and one of the most talked-of books of our time. Its interpretation of the man Jesus is fresh and vigorous, but wholly reverent—the viewpoint of a business man, rather than of a mystic.

Marion Celebrating St. Patrick's Day by Wearing Color for Patron Saint

A. O. H. banquet, there'd be a play, an Irish play, like "Kathleen Mavourneen," or something on that order.

* * *

BUT, today most of the "old" Irish have died off. And, the young blood haven't the enthusiasm of their fathers. St. Patrick means a shamrock and what a shamrock means—well, they have to stop and ponder before they can recall that it was the beloved saint's symbol of the Trinity.

The only observance reporters found here today was a high mass celebrated at St. Mary's Catholic Church at 8 o'clock this morning in hoonr of the great saint. And there wasn't any school at St. Mary's—but it was Saturday anyway.

* * *

PUPILS of St. Mary's High School presented an entertaining program yesterday afternoon in the auditorium, in observance of St. Patrick's Day. Girls of the Senior and Junior Classes opened the program with a song, "An Irish Lullaby," and Miss Madeline McFarland contributed a reading on "Irish Music." "Machree," was the title of a vocal number given by Miss Katherine Kraft and Miss Mary Miller gave a reading, "Cornaylius, Ha, Ha, Ha, Hanniganan."

Two vocal numbers, "The Old Irish Mother of Mine," and "That Tumble Down Shack in Athlone," were presented by Donald Brown, Robert Dwyer, Eugene Gunder, John Hayden, Clifford Hogan, Robert McAndrew, Robert O'Connor and Howard Tobin, and Miss Mary Murphy contributed a piano number, "Come Back to Erin." The program concluded with a recitation, "Applyin' the Sermon," by Miss Gertrude Mullee and "Strains from Killarney," by members of St. Mary's High School Orchestra.

CLOSE SENATE OIL PROBE, RETURN HOME

$4,000 to the Republicans. Neither knew anything of Harry F. Sinclair's Liberty Bonds.

"Mr. Eckhart asked me for a $5,000 contribution," said White, "so I sent him a check for $4,000."

The late Frank D. Stout, Chicago capitalist, gave Eckhart $5,000, according to James A. McCoy, his former secretary. There was no refund, said McCoy.

Develop Clew Series

The personal deposit slips of Upham, Republican national treasurer in the First National Bank of Chicago, were subpenaed during the session.

A series of clews that may take a good deal of the mystery out of the Continental Trading Company's mysterious $3,080,000 "slush fund," was in the hands of the committee as it prepared to close its Chicago inquiry.

The new clews may lead to the location of some more of the bonds used by Harry F Sinclair to pay off the Republican National Committee's 1920 campaign deficit.

A wide array of witnesses, most of them "millionaire angels" of the Republican party, have given the committee some sensational revelations. These developments included evidence that:

Will Hays, former Republican national chairman, received only a small part of the $85,000 refunded him by Harry F. Sinclair, the greater portion being used to pay off his losses in stock speculations to James P. Connery, wealthy Chicago coal magnate. Hays testified in Washington that Connery, his friend, had delivered the whole $85,000 to him.

"Drop in Bucket"

Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the Standard Oil of Indiana, deposited $318,400 in the Continental and Commercial Trust Co. in the five weeks between Nov. 24 and Dec. 31, 1924, just about the time Sinclair began operating his Teapot Dome lease.

The $60,000 of Sinclair bonds sent to the late Fred W. Upham by Hays may have been only a "drop in the bucket" as compared to the total amount actually used here. The testimony of witnesses revealed $30,800 in "dummy" contributions on Upham's records.

An agreement existed between the Republican and Democratic national treasuries to refrain from making any reports on the 1923 campaign contributions. Two secretaries to Upham declared he told them that Wilbur W. Marsh, Democratic treasurer, proposed this agreement.

Testifies from Sickbed

The Republican National Committee rolled up a $1,000,000 deficit, on the 1920 campaign, according to Fred H. Pearson, comptroller of the committee at the time.

The testimony of Connery, given from a sickbed last night, revealed that Hays had purchased Sinclair consolidated stock on "tips" from the Teapot Dome magnate, lost heavily, went $100,000 "short" once and only got back a small portion of the $85,000 refund made by Sinclair on account of "loans" to the Republican National Committee. There was this one discrepancy, in that Hays testified at Washington he got the whole $85,000 from Connery.

MARRIAGE CEREMONY BEGINS BEFORE DAWN

Nancy Miller and Former Maharajah United in Hindoo Rites

haze of dust, kicked up by the sandals of the natives, hung low over the narrow streets.

To Undergo Operation

Announcement was made that, following the marriage, the ex-maharajah and his wife will go to the city of Indore, capital of the native states, after a brief visit they will leave for Europe where the princess will undergo an operation for appendicitis. She has been sufffering from this ailment, but her condition was not sufficiently serious to demand an immediate operation.

The Hindoo marriage ceremony, which is both spectacular and impressive, begins with the invocation of the elephant headed god Ganesh, who blesses all auspicious ceremonies and events.

The most important part of this ritual is sapta-padi, or walking round the sacred fire in seven steps, the husband leading the wife, meanwhile registering the holy marriage vow. This part of the rites begins with invocation of the seven sacred sages, symbolized by the seven stars of the great polar bear.

The bride and bridegroom stand facing each other with a veil drawn between them while the ritual priests chant sauscrit verses invoking the blessings of the whole wide world, the seas and the heavens above upon the union. The principals bow their heads and the priests toss handfulls of saffron colored rice upon them.

Dressed in Silk

Both the bride and the bridegroom are dressed in silk and both of them wear the auspicious maudavali or chainlets of pearls upon their foreheads. When the veil is raised at the end of the chanting the newly wed couple garland each other. Then the husband ties about his wife's throat the sacred mangalsitra—a necklace of auspicious black beads with a golden leaf in the center.

Miss Miller, as the moment for the nuptial ceremony approached, knelt in worshipful attitude before the idol Devi Couri, for she must worship idols now that she has renounced Christianity for the Hindoo faith

Special Nose Ring

Unable to wear the traditional nose ring, Miss Miller had a special one made for her. It was wrought of gold and crusted with diamonds and pearls. It was equipped with a fastening clasp at the nostrils so that the nose would not have to be pierced.

In contrast with the mighty fortune in gold, silver and precious jewels seen at the ceremony was the ceremonial necklace of black beads. However rich the marrying couple may be this necklace is always of the cheapest character which can be bought for a couple of shillings in any bazaar. After this necklace is fastened the couple are declared man and wife "in the eyes of the gods and all mankind." Then follows the reception and the feasting.

Demand for Motor Corporation Stock Continues Strong

Markets at a Glance

Railroad stocks, firm; industrial stocks irregular; domestic bonds inactive; foreign bonds firm; grain firm; copper steady; oil steady; cotton, steady; rubber, steady; sugar steady; pig iron steady; foreign exchange irregular.

New York, March 17—The speculative interest stirred up in the railroad stocks by Friday's sharp advance in the leading issues was reflected in the broad demand for railroad shares in the early trading today. Though officials who attended yesterday's secret session here were unwilling to make any comment, it is believed that the heads of the strategically situated roads are in agreement with respect to the eastern trunk line systems, and will in future co-operate instead of working to block each others' progress.

New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Canadian Pacific and a dozen or more of the well-known rails advanced moderately in this period. The southwest-merger rails, including Kansas City Southern and St. Louis South Western advanced in good form, and the Nickel Plate group was also in demand.

The weekly trade reviews noted some expansion in important departments of domestic industry and trade, particularly where the weather and good roads helped along the process. March trade compares favorably with that of last year.

That the "bull movement" in General Motors had not been completed was evident from the enormous buying demand for the stock at new high record prices. Opening at 160 1-2, General Motors pushed ahead brilliantly to 171 1-2 in the first half hour and numerous 5,000-share blocks of the stock changing hands. Chrysler and Hudson continued strong.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

With large supplies of new vegetables and strawberries on sale, markets today took on a decided spring-like atmosphere. Green beans, peas, new potatoes, new cabbage, radishes, green onions, were on the market in large buying. Prices were much the same quantities in anticipation of heavy as yesterday, except some leaders were being offered. New potatoes were holding at three pounds for 25 cents, new cabbage at five cents and beans and peas at 20 cents a pound.

Old vegetables were plentiful and were supplying a heavy demand with no change in prices. Potatoes were being offered today at 35 to 45 cents and old cabbage at three cents. Leaf vegetables were plentiful. Leaf lettuce was holding at 15 cents, endive at 25 cents and spinach at two pounds for 25 cents. A few cucumbers were on the market today that were selling at 25 and 30 cents. Hothouse tomatoes were not so plentiful. A few were on the market that were selling slowly at 25 and 30 cents a pound.

Fruit prices were about the same as yesterday. Strawberries were holding at 35 cents for a small box or 55 cents a quart. TODAY'S REVIEW OF YESTERDAY'S MARKET

Chicago, March 17—Broad buying power developed in the corn market yesterday, sending the nearby futures to new high prices on the movement, while the distant deliveries registered new top prices on the crop. Export demand and the strengthening cash situation were factors.

Realizing and sales by holders of the privileges brought a reaction from best prices, but gains of 1-2c were recorded. The March closed at 98c, May, $1.00⅛; July, $1.02⅜, and September, $1.03⅛.

Renewed interest in wheat resulted from the sharp upturn in corn, reports of a liberal export business being transacted and the belief that Europe is taking substantial quantities of high grade domestic wheat for mixing purposes.

The three nearest months showed gains of ⅞@1⅛c at the close, but September was draggy and finished ⅛c lower. March closed at $1.38⅝, May $1.38, July $1.33 and September $1.33¼.

Oats and Rye Rise

Export news was also the feature in oats and rye trading. Oats registered net advances of ⅝@¾c, while rye finished ¼@⅝c higher.

Wheat opened a shade easier under local selling, but the pressure was not heavy. Most of the news related to foreign demand, although a local crop expert advised that after a trip through the soft winter territory he believes that section will raise about the same amount of wheat as a year ago. As this is the section where there is the greatest acreage increase, the statement was construed as bullish.

All advices indicated a good export business working from the Atlantic seaboard, while sales of No. 2 hard at the gulf at better prices than No. 3 northern in the same position were viewed as indicative of the foreign demand for high quality wheat.

Cash Wheat Strong

Final news from the seaboard said sales of wheat in all positions were estimated at 500,000 to 600,000 bu. Cash wheat was strong, but trade was quiet because of light offerings. The basis was unchanged and firm and prices ruled ½@1c higher. Local sales totaled only 5,000 bu. Receipts 51 cars.

Foreign wheat markets were generally quiet. Liverpool opened ¼d lower, but cables said there was an upward tendency due to a better demand, and the market finished ¼@½c higher. Buenos Aires was unchanged to ⅛c higher at mid-session. Winnipeg closed ¼@⅝c higher.

World's shipments, exlusive of North America, showed a sharp decrease at 7,480,000 bu, compared with 9,711,000 bu a week ago. Bradstreet's North American clearances also dropped, totaling 6,211,941 bu, compared with 8,179,002 bu a week ago. Total world's shipments from the foregoing figures are 13,691,941 bu, against 17,890,002 bu a week ago.

Seed close: Clover—Cash imported old 14.75; March 15.75; cash domestic 10.75; March 10.75; Oct. 15.60. Alsike—Cash and March 15.00. Timothy—Cash and March 1.90 bid.

The Ford was towed to Albert Brothers garage, N. Main-st, for repairs.

Truck Overturns

The delivery truck from Flach's meat market, S. Main-st, skidded and turned over on its side across the C., M. & S. interurban tracks near the scene of the Adams accident. A C., M. & S. car was delayed for a short time until the truck could be removed from the track by the Albert Brothers wrecker.

A Chrysler sedan, driven by an unidentified Columbus man, and an Essex coach from Delaware both crashed into the ditch when they sideswiped on the Marion-Delaware-rd about five miles south of the city, last night. After being taken from the ditch by Albert Brothers wrecker, the Chrysler was towed to a Waldo garage for repairs and the Essex continued its trip south. No one was injured.

The right rear wheel of a Ford coupe owned by M. Harruff, Union-st, was broken off when the car skidded and crashed into the curbing at the intersection of Church and Union-sts this morning. The car was also taken in charge by Albert Brothers for repairs.

CHARGE DISMISSED

Earl Rosenbaugh, brought back to this city from Dayton early this week in connection with the theft of a quantity of household goods from the home of Clarence Landon, Toledo-av, last November, was released this morning and the charge dismissed for lack of evidence. Rosenbaugh pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Municipal Judge Martin and his hearing was set for this morning.

And now Germany breaks off trade relations with soviet Russia. Scarcely a day passes without some added evidence of how weary the civilized world has become of the follies of communism.

The supreme court of Canada is considering whether a woman is legally a "person." Off hand, we would answer in the affirmative. Still, we have met some who have insisted that they were "nothing more than mere machines."

Seattle elected Mrs. Bertha Landes mayor to bring about a civic clean-up, and she did it. She was defeated for a second term by a former theater operator, who led her by 19,000 votes, from which, we take it, Seattle has repented of ever having become clean.

The German government has issued an order of expulsion against the former kaiser's brother-in-law, Alexander Subkoff, now in the Belgian Congo, on the ground that he is an undesirable alien. It's almost brutal to separate a blushing young bride from her husband like that!

$12,000 a Year.

Upon the petition of her mother, a New Jersey court has authorized an allowance of $12,000 a year for the maintenance and education of Gloria Caruso, the eight-year-old daughter of the late great tenor, Enrico Caruso. The money, under the order of the court, will be taken from royalties on Caruso records and paid to the mother, who set up in her petition that her household and other expenses were $30,000 a year, while her income is about $9,000.

Among the expenses listed by little Gloria's mother were $6,000 a year for a New York apartment, $4,500 covering the wages of servants, $7,200 for food, $5,000 for clothing and $4,000 for an automobile.

Items relating specifically to Gloria were $1,500 for a nurse, $2,000 for clothing, $1,100 for French and Italian lessons, $600 for general schooling, $500 for musical education, $100 for dancing lessons, $500 for medical attention and $4,000 for an annual trip to Italy and four months' residence there each year, pursuant to an Italian court order.

The court pointed out that the mother as guardian of the child was entitled to use as much as was reasonably necessary for the proper rearing of the girl and was not compelled to meet that expense from her own income, however great, provided the child had sufficient income of her own.

It developed during the course of the proceeding that Caruso left a big estate in royalties alone, the royalty collections since his death in 1921 having aggregated $741,447. The total for 1921 was $422,981.56, which dropped to $125,177.66 in 1922 and thereafter declined to $74,762.75 last year.

With ample means at hand, there is no reason why the little daughter of the famous tenor should not enjoy every advantage suitable to one of her tender years, but there is a point where a so-called advantage may prove a disadvantage. In a similar matter in which the first wife of Tom Mix asked for $1,500 a month for the maintenance and education of their daughter who is about twice the age of little Gloria, the cowboy urged the court to allow all that was right and proper, but not to allow her so much as to spoil her. This sage suggestion by Mix applies equally well here.

And then there is another phase of the matter.

Several years ago a citizen was overheard to remark as a fellow-citizen, apparently known to him, drove past in a high-priced car: "It's people like that, driving machines like that, who make anarchists." Whether he was right or wrong, we can not help but wonder what was the reaction of thousands upon thousands of people when they read $12,000 had been authorized for the education and maintenance of an eight-year-old girl—eight times the earnings of the average wage-earner.

Alien Propaganda in Our Mails.

The All America Anti-Imperialistic league has secured an order from Federal Judge John C. Knox, sitting in New York City, requiring the postal authorities to show cause next Tuesday why they should not admit to mails stickers carrying the inscription, "Protest Against Marine Rule in Nicaragua."

It may be said, in passing, that, judging by its activities and those generally known to be associated with it, the All America Anti-Imperialistic league could just as fittingly be called the Anti-United States Government league, for it is fighting the policies of the United States government and doing its utmost to frustrate them.

Nicaragua was in the throes of one of the revolutions so common in that unhappy land when the United States government sent marines down there to protect not only our own interests, but also those of other nationals down there. We have canal rights across Nicaragua which must be maintained and, under the Monroe doctrine, we are forced to protect the rights of other nations, for we could not consistently complain against other nations protecting their rights if we refused or neglected to protect them. In line with our policy, our marines were sent to Nicaragua to support the de facto government in preserving order.

This government also sent to Nicaragua, as its representative, Colonel Henry L. Stimson, who secured an agreement, whereby the Liberals, then in revolt, agreed to lay down their arms with the understanding that a free and fair election would be held this year under the supervision of the United States as guarantor of its fairness. Almost all the rebels laid down their arms, but General Augustino Sandino and several hundred of his followers held out and are now being pursued by United States troops. The Nicaraguan legislature, which is Conservative, since the reaching of the agreement, has rejected the election bill necessary to the carrying-out of the election under the Stimson agreement.

The hand of General Emiliano Chamorro, generally credited with the overthrow of the legally-elected government in Nicaragua, is seen in the refusal of the Conservative party in Nicaragua to pass the election bill.

The present Conservative president, Adolfo Diaz, is regarded in Nicaragua as the "catspaw of Chamorro," who in turn does not want to have an election—and especially a fair one—for all signs in Nicaragua point to an overwhelming Liberty victory. Thus, it is believed, Chamorro has ordered his political servants in the legislature to vote against the bill authorizing the elections so that he and his party will not be thrown out of office.

The United States government having sent marines to Nicaragua to protect life and property of aliens down there, and having since sent additional troops looking to the guaranteeing of the free and fair election provided for in the Stimson agreement, the post-office department barred the stickers from the mails, naturally seeing the impropriety and folly alike of permitting a lot of aliens and others unfriendly to the established policies of the United States to use the United States mails to defeat those policies and undo what this government has done looking to the protection of life and property in Nicaragua. Since this action on the part of the post-office department, attempts by those unfriendly to our Nicaraguan policy to secure action in congress looking to the recalling of our marines have been defeated, and the Nicaraguan legislature has rejected the election bill.

Such is the situation under which the post-office authorities are ordered to show cause next Tuesday why they should not admit to the mails the propaganda of the friends of Sandino, who is at present being chased by our troops down in Nicaragua as an outlaw.

Perhaps some additional light may be thrown upon the situation by stating that Manuel Gomez, secretary and treasurer of the league with the high-sounding name, has announced that there will be a meeting of the league in New York City Monday night, the night before the hearing, with Scott Nearing as one of the speakers.

British Flight Lieutenant S. M. Kinkead, who plunged to his death off Southampton, is credited of having attained a speed of 330 miles an hour the day before the crash. Incidentally, he demonstrated, the day of his crash, that more attention must be given in plane construction to the matter of strength to withstand the resistance of the air, but he didn't live to realize it.

Procter & Gamble paid $700,501 in free profit-sharing dividends to their employes in 1927, the largest amount thus paid out in any year in the history of the company, which is naturally pleasing—pleasing because we naturally like to see faithful workers rewarded and pleasing because it goes to show that the doctrine of cleanliness is making gains throughout the land.

A St. Bernard dog, which has been mourning since its master's death two months ago, approached the bedside of its mistress, one morning this week, licked her hand a couple of times and then deliberately leaped through a window of the fifth story of the Paris apartment house in which she was living. Paris police recorded the dog's act as a case of suicide, the first of record. Once more, do animals reason?

Vagrant Verse.

THE CITY OF DREAMS.

I know of a beautiful city—
The beautiful city of dreams—
Where we dwell in the magic of making
A better world than it seems,
Because of the hunger for beauty
Till beauty before us gleams
If all men wanted to see it—
And all men must ere long—
It would not be merely a vision,
It would not be merely a song,
But something to flower in glory
And something to heal our wrong
Oh, for the men of vision
To carry us on with their fire
To the temples of this great city,
To the peaks of its pure desire
And over across them and over
To visions that time makes higher!

Ventilation Vital in Health.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

One of the strange things about human beings is their apparent indifference to the sort of air they breathe. They will sit in a room, stifling in its heat and poisoned in its air. Without protest and, so far as I can judge, utterly unconscious of the vileness of the atmosphere, they go about their affairs in the most unconcerned manner.

In many of the senate committee-rooms I have made myself disagreeable lots of times by pleading for fresh air. The senate chamber is hardly better than a thermos bottle as a place to live for hours at a time.

Go into a lawyer's office, or the office of some big business executive—nine time out of ten the room is choking with tobacco smoke, or else stuffy from lack of ventilation. You feel like being sent to a hospital after a half hour's visit in such an atmosphere.

I am not railing about tobacco. While I do not use it, most of my friends do, and they appear to thrive in spite of it. I do insist, however, that it is not good for health to breathe over and over again the smoke-laden atmosphere of a tightly-closed room.

To smoke in the open air or in a room with an open window, will spare you the harm of breathing the smoke. You wouldn't think of sitting around a flour mill, in the dust of a fauning mill, or in any other dusty place. You try to pass an automobile kicking up the dust on a country road. You have sense to know that dust is an irritant and will damage your nose and throat and lungs, and yet you endure a dusty or smoky room.

Fresh air and good ventilation are essential to health. Make it a point to keep your office, home, factory or other place of business, clear from smoke, dust and irritating vapors. You can not afford to stay in the wrong atmosphere.

In a sense, dusty and smoky air acts like sandpaper. It irritates the mucus membrane, preparing the way for the germs of disease.

There can be no doubt that the agent capable of causing the common cold, has the way prepared for its attacks by the irritation produced by dust and dirt and smoke. If you would avoid frequent colds, give yourself an abundance of fresh air, day and night.

Admiral Peary went to the North pole without a cold. He came back to civilization and almost died immediately. He "took cold" in the warm and enervating surroundings of civilization.

Make it your business to see that your family and associates are protected against disease. They are not so protected if the nose and lungs are constantly bombarded by offensive air.

I hope I have made clear how essential this matter really is. You can not expect to be well and vigorous if you continue to live in the wrong atmosphere.

Schools, churches, lodge rooms, railroad stations and cars, street cars and omnibuses, court-rooms, and all other public places should be kept free from dust and smoke. Fresh air will add to the happiness, alertness and chance of good health.

Progress of Aviation.

In 1927 the Atlantic ocean was crossed by four different planes and the Pacific from California to Hawaii twice.

Air lines operating from Dearborn, Michigan, to Chicago, Cleveland and Buffalo completed 357,321 miles of travel last year without an accident resulting in personal injury or loss of cargo

An outstanding aviation record was that made in Australia last year, when aeroplanes in regular service covered more than 500,000 miles without the slightest injury to a pilot or passenger.

The Flying club, of Harvard university, has opened a ground school course in the fundamentals of flying. It also will undertake to sponsor and advise twenty-five or thirty new flying clubs in colleges and universities of the United States.

A baby airship that can be folded up when not in use, or can, at the end of a journey, be attached to a mooring mast brought along on a light motor truck, is to attempt a flight from England to America this summer. The airship will carry thirty people, apart from a crew of six to ten men.

HIS ONLY HAVEN THE SKIES.

Paradoxically, the experienced Colonel Lindbergh is a very inexperienced young man. Apparently, with all his splendid aplomb, all his perfect self-possession, all his admirable restraint, he knows only one thing, which is flying.

Ambassador of good will he is, truly; captor of the affections of millions of people, whether they ever saw him or not; and as such, object of the sincere concern of the same millions. Human he is, as well; and more and more, as the months have passed, tried as no other man of his time has been tried, by the honest, if self-indulgent, desire of all within his landing range to touch hands with him, figuratively at least, and to move for a few moments, however insignificantly, in the same orbit with him.

In the face of all this—and this is said without a shred of disparagement—the "Flying Colonel" knows only one thing, for all his unprecedented entry into the affairs and the hearts of men. He knows flying. And tried as he is, pressed upon actually and figuratively by the same tireless crowd that represents well nigh the entire human race, he knows only one place of refuge, one haven from the madding throng.

When "Lindy" wants to rest, to be alone, to escape from the unceasing attention, the never-ending curiosity of the human race, he knows only that he can find it by taking off from wherever he is, not to go somewhere else, but just to go away from there. Blessed as to stamina, self-conserved as to health, he has no notion, even, of such a thing as a place of rest. His terminology is space, not place. Hotels, clubs, embassies, private homes—he knows them, too, but mainly as places of hospitality, likely to become tiresome however sincere its proffer. Everywhere except in the air, the crowd, in some form or another, is ever about him. The only freedom he has known for ten months has been in the air.

How, then, may any man presume to set another pattern for this splendidly, yet pathetically unique young man? Patterns are not for "Lindy." But all who love him—and they are millions—wish he might acquire for himself, now that his honors are so complete, some other realm of unannoyance beside the air to which he flees for rest. He is America's most precious son, for what he has done, for what he is, and without the least regard for what he might do in the future.—Minneapolis Journal.

MISREPRESENTING FASCISMO.

Debating in New York with Dr. Vincenzo Nitti on the virtues and defects of Fascismo, Samuel S. McClure, American publisher, extolled Mussolini for transforming the Italian press into "a house organ"—"maybe the most miraculous of his achievements."

But this was not the only one of Mussolini's "miracles" that Mr. McClure discovered during his recent visit to Italy. The Fascist dictator has also, among other things, "developed the most miraculous method in 100 years for making real democracy workable."

Dr. Nitti, who is a son of the former Italian premier of that name, may have been too eager to picture Mussolini as an autocrat trampling on the liberties of a helpless nation. Between them, at any rate, Nitti and McClure managed to keep their audience of Fascists and anti-Fascists in a state of riotous excitement, which ended with the Black Shirts carrying Mussolini's American apologist on their shoulders.

What with a fist fight or two, everybody had a fine time at the debate; but it now remains for Mussolini or his followers in this country to take Mr. McClure in hand. In his ecstasy he seems to have gotten the ideas of Fascismo all mixed up. The very last thing that Mussolini wants is any misconception as to his democracy. And democracy is the last thing he wishes to make workable in Italy. For more than five years he has been bending all his energies, all his genius to the one task of wiping out democratic institutions. He has succeeded beyond his own earlier expectations, and today his boast is that Italy has left behind her the follies of a superannuated, bankrupt liberalism.

In so far as this transformation is genuine and not mere humbug, it is a miracle of sorts and well can Mussolini be proud. And now an American, dizzy with admiration, but otherwise well-meaning, comes along and tries to represent Fascismo as the quintessence of democracy and Mussolini as a democrat. What Mussolini needs, perhaps, is a school where visiting Americans of McClure's type could be trained to see Fascismo as the frank negation of all democratic principles and to preach it as such upon their return to America.—Detroit Free Press.

Prayer—O our God, make us to be glad and rejoice all our days.

A Universe Travel Society.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

There has recently been founded in Moscow the most up-to-date and up-to-snuff society yet on record. Translated into French, its title is "Societe des Voyagers de l'Univers." It appeals for the cooperation of all who wish to interest themselves in the realization of "sidereal cruisers," with a view to end the isolation of the inhabitants of our little planet in the midst of so many fascinating planetary and stellar neighbors.

This daring society, to whom the imagination appears as the most natural yoke-fellow for invention, has set the ball rolling by an exhibition held in Tverskala street, Moscow, where were collected a variety of documents and writings pertaining to the subject of interplanetary communication, together with models of the various devices that have been contrived for the purpose of testing the possibility of human flight between the earth and other worlds.

There were to be seen many ingenious constructions designed to set man free from the tyranny of gravitation, which, if they have not proved their practicability, do not in that respect fall below the similar failures that lie heaped before the threshold of every great mechanical triumph that has cost long centuries of effort.

Particularly interesting, and significant of encouragement, were the models of different kinds of repeating skyrockets, including the inventions of Messrs. Zioikovsky, Ribaltchicht, Goddard, Obert and others. Ribaltchicht claims to have begun his experiments as long ago as 1881. Goddard is our own Professor Goddard, of Clark university, whose "moon-rocket," as it has popularly been called, although its inventor has specifically aimed only at attaining the upper levels of the earth's atmosphere, has been familiar to newspaper readers for several years past.

It is entirely appropriate that this ambitious and fore-looking society should have given a considerable place in its exhibition to pure works of the imagination, such as pictures of the departure of gigantic interplanetary rocket-cruisers destined to open up direct relations with surrounding worlds, and representations of lunar landscapes as they would appear after we terrestrians shall have colonized the moon.

It is not surprising to learn that this extraordinary and decidedly futurist exhibition was attended by a great number of visitors. That it should have been conceived and held in "Mother Moscow" is in itself a cause for thought, like the spontaneous originality and independence of Russian literature and various forms of Russian art. To the fresh, unterrified intellect Napoleon's "There is no such word as impossible" appeals self-evident.

Curiously enough, just at the time when this singular movement has attracted attention in Moscow, in France a prize called the "Prix Rep-Hirsch" has been established by a so-called "Commission Astronautique," for the purpose of encouraging original efforts in the same direction. This commission expresses faith in the future of the skyrocket idea, at least as far as concerns the thorough exploration of our atmosphere to its uttermost limits, and ventures "to dream of a more complete evasion when, liberated by its speed from attractive servitude to the globe, the vehicle shall traverse the sideral abyss to attain the confines of a new world."

The Astronomical Society of France has accepted the charge of annually awarding the prize of 5,000 francs offered by the Astronautique commission—note the word "astronautique," meaning "sky or star navigation"—but it gives notice that it will not lend itself to any "seductive Utopia," or leave room for any "equivoque." It recognizes that all that can now be done is to investigate the subject theoretically by investigations and experiments conducted "by the most perfect scientific methods."

It is not for this generation to look forward to taking return trip tickets to the moon, Mars or Venus. But the idea is in the air; let us see it develop into reality if it can.—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

During the five years covered by Mr. Verburg's services as teacher, the class has established the record of being one of the most active and progressive Sunday School organizations in the city. Last Sunday's attendance was 104, the largest in the history of the class.

Reports will be made, Sunday, on the standings of 10 teams which are participating in a membership contest which has been in progress since Jan. 1.

What Think Ye of Christ?

A SERMONETTE
BY REV. G. E. WADDLE,
Pastor, First Church of Nazarene

JESUS is the most colossal and commanding figure of history. Measured by the extent of His influence upon mankind, or by the purity and dignity of His character, He is supreme among men. He is the most marvelous and mysterious exception to all the ordinary rules and laws which fix the character and destiny of men.

The proof that any outstanding character of history lived is not in a certificate of birth; nevertheless we date our letters from the supposed birth of Christ. Satisfactory evidence of the existence of a person of the past is found in the mark he has left upon the pages of history. Few men are seen across the centuries, but to some, years add more grandeur. The annals of the race for nineteen centuries record the effect which Christ's life produced upon human affairs.

Ancient history converges on Christ; modern history radiates from Him. He marks the great divide, not only in time, but in events as well. A new order began with Him, more potent than the migration of nations, more significant than the rise and fall of empires. The little systems of men have their day and cease to be, but around Jesus gathers the majestic course of the centuries. His coming was the dawn of a new era, as the creation of a new world.

The age-long cry of the human race had been for the revelation of a personal God, able and willing to meet man's need, remove the guilt and stain of sin and give rest to the troubled conscience. From the days of Job, man's cry has been, "Oh, that I knew where I might find Him!" Plato voiced such a cry, when he said: "We look for a God, or a God-inspired man, who will show us our duty and take away the darkness from our eyes." Through long generations of Jewish history there thrilled the longing anxious heart, as prophet after prophet voiced an eternal hope of a coming Messiah, able and willing to lift man out of the pit into which he had fallen, and heal him of the awful malady of sin.

In the fullness of time He came, according to the Scriptures, He lived among men, "was manifest in the flesh, justified in the Spirit, seen of angels, preached to the Gentiles, believed on in the world, and received up unto glory."

"Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, today and forever."

REVIVAL SERVICES INTEREST GROWING

Upland, Ind., Pastor To Preach Sunday at Calvary Evangelical

With growing interest revival services continue Sunday and the coming week in several of the local churches. Sunday will also bring to a close two-week revivals at Prospect Street M. E. and Forest Lawn Presbyterian Churches.

Rev. John F. Owen of Upland, Ind., who arrived here yesterday, will preach at evangelistic services Sunday at Calvary Evangelical Church, bringing to a close a week of special meetings. There will be a service at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon at which Reverend Owen will give the sermon. The Upland pastor, now director of Theology at Taylor University, was formerly engaged in evangelistic work.

Central Christian

At Central Christian Church Rev. J. J. Tisdall of Mansfield, evangelist, will preach, continuing the revival throughout the coming week. Services will also be held Sunday and each night of next week at Herman Street Community Church, the pastor, Rev. Frank P. George, who is in charge, to preach Sunday morning on the subject, "Heavenly Helps" and Sunday night on the subject, "Marion's Calvary." Of particular interest at the Community Church revival are the cartoons of a religious nature made by the pastor at each service. Attendance thus far has been good and a large number have professed conversion. A communion service will follow the sermon Sunday night.

Services To Close

Revival services will close Sunday night at Forest Lawn Presbyterian Church with the sermon by Rev. John A. Carriker, pastor, on the subject, "Glorying in the Cross." At the same hour a two-weeks revival will close at Prospect Street Church when Rev. Karl W. Patow, pastor, preaches on the subject, "The Forsaken Christ," fourth in a series of Lenten sermons.

Evangelistic campaigns are also in progress at Bennett Street Nazarene Mission and will open in the near future at Oakland Evangelical and Pilgrim Holiness Churches.

Trade Tricks
Bobbing Again
A Cat's Life

BY EDNA S. DUTTON

ALL trades have their tricks and grim necessity makes a lot of folk work their brain overtime figuring out how to beat the wolf. Knights of the road have their geniuses as well as the wolf. Knights of the road have their clever ones but the best I have heard recently happened in a local restaurant one morning this week. This particular customer dropped in like the rest of the hungry mob, perched himself on a stool at the counter and ordered a cup of java. "Anything else?" queried the efficient girl behind the counter, and with this he ordered some doughnuts. He munched his breakfast as casually as the rest of us and when every crumb of it was out of sight announced calmly to his hostess: "You know I had a buddy last night and he stole all my money." With this he marched himself out the door and when the surprised girl found words to express herself he was quite a few yards down the street.

* * *

IF you heard Catherine Wade-Smith Tuesday night you will agree with me she was a real violinist and possessed a charming personality that made you think you would like to know her. You also noted that she was unbobbed. The artistic little knot which she wore at the nape of her neck was just what you would expect of a violinist, just like you expect to find horn rimmed spectacles and eye shades adorning the physiognomy of a pencil-pushing reporter. The only difference is, hers was becoming. While Katie is one of the two out of three thousand who did not bob a few years ago, she did succumb to a desire to wield the shears and as a result about half the length of her crowning glory took the count. And this is what was worrying her. Imagine being concerned over such a trivial matter as whether or not one's locks were going to stay put when one had to play a whole program that would please a crowd of 500 or more cash customers. The sheering act took place only a few days ago and this was the first concert the young lady had played since the devastation. Knowing this before hand I took particular care to observe the behavior of the locks, which so far as I could see, were above reproach.

* * *

THE average house cat has a tough life of it, despite the fact she may sleep on a cushion and lap up cream whenever she feels so disposed, and it must be pretty enraging to see the neighbor's dog taking the air in a high powered car six out of seven afternoons a week. She has to sit at home and look out the window all because the girls in her family, for generations back, didn't go in for that kind of stuff. No wonder Miss Pussy waxes seemingly curious and roams through the house from garret to basement every chance she gets. It's nervousness, beyond the question of a doubt, and I suppose a certain amount should be overlooked but when a cat reaches a stage where she can't sleep and walks up and down the keyboard of a piano at 6 o'clock in the morning in order to get the household up for company, it's time to open a bottle of catnip or import a flock of mice.

"And we'll force more than that out of him, too, before we're through!" gritted Java Dick. "All right, my lad, you seem to be getting a bit of a glimmer of sense. The paper don't matter 'cause, if it's torn up, nobody else gets it. What we're asking you now is where it said the treasure was that Hsi Yan found?"

Bob Kingsley hesitated an instant—then he plunged boldly.

"If I tell you, will you let Miss Lyle there go?" he demanded.

"Sure!" agreed Java Dick almost too readily.

"And you?" Bob Kingsley turned to Chen-shu.

"That, Heaven-Born," replied Chen-shu affably, "embodies all my desires."

Bob Kingsley smiled grimly. What good did it do him to prove them liars? He knew it already! But there was just the slim chance, not one in a million, that his proposal might work.

"Very well, then," he said, "I'll tell you what I'll do. You can fix the details to suit yourselves. I don't care how you do it. Take us in a car if you like, so that you can drive away with me afterwards without running any risk of being caught. But let me see Miss Lyle enter the door of any Eglishman's house here in Singapore that she selects, and I'll tell you where Hsi Yan's treasure is."

"The disrust that is in the Heaven-Borns heart," observed Chen-shu smoothly, "begets distrust even in so humble a person as myself. Does the Heaven-Born forget why the maiden was brought here?"

"But you would still have me in your power," returned Bob Kingsley plausibly. "If I didn't keep my word, you would have me where you wanted me."

"Not on your life!" scowled Java Dick. "I told you before I knew your kind. You'd go out with a grin if you felt like it, just so's to do us in! The girl's a sure bet! You don't come none of that stuff!"

Bob Kingsley's hands returned to his pockets—and clenched again. It was an impasse!

"Well, what do you propose, then?" he asked evenly.

"Propose!" Java Dick guffawed mockingly. "I ain't proposing nothing! But I tell you what you're going to do, and what we're going to do. You're going to tell us where the loot is, and then you're going to take us there, and the girl's going along so's to make sure you don't lose your blarsted memory at the last minute. And if you try any game at giving us the wrong steer you can figure for yourself what this crowd'll do first to the girl and then to you. Come on, now, let's have it! If you play straight, you and the girl go free."

"Yes," agreed Chen-shu amiably, "the Heaven-Born has only to bring us to the treasure, and after that it shall be as Java Dick has said."

A lie like the first, of course! Bob Kingsley glanced toward the door. Verna was still there, but he could not see her face. There were too many of these leering henchmen of Chen-shu crowded in between them now. A lie—but it meant a few days' respite. A respite was what he was striving for! Something might happen in that time. Should he tell them the truth—or lead them on a fool's errand? He might gain an extra day or two by naming a locality further away than Luala; and, besides, Captain Scarface was at Luala, and, outnumbered two to one, might fall into their hands.

He was suddenly conscious that Chen-shu was smiling ironically.

"If the Heaven-Born is tempted to an imaginary tale," observed Chen-shu sweetly, "let the Heaven-Born remember that on the voyage in which Hsi Yan found the treasure all here except Java Dick were on the junk with Hsi Yan, and that it is known to us at what places he paid visits to the land."

Bob Kingsley smiled in return. The thrust had gone home—but there was no reason why Chen-shu should know it! His hand was forced now—there was no alternative. Verna came before Scarface—and Scarface would be the first to have it that way; and, besides, it did not mean that Scarface, even if found at Luala, would necessarily be overtaken by disaster; Scarface was no fool, he had his wits about him, and the Iola as a possible means of escape. He, Bob Kingsley, did not know where Hsi Yan had been on that voyage—except one place. If he attempted to mislead them and guessed wrong—Verna would pay.

"Hsi Yan's cipher said Luala," he answered.

There was a sudden, eager glitter in Chen-shu's eyes.

"It is true that Hsi Yan made land at Luala," he said. "Likewise, I remember where he landed. What, then, O Heaven-Born?"

Again Bob Kingsley achieved a smile—for again his hand was forced.

"The cipher referred to a creek," he said.

Chen-shu nodded.

"That also is true," he agreed. "And then?"

Bob Kingsley shrugged his shoulders. Luala and the creek! With that much known, he gained nothing by attempting to conceal the rest.

"A half-mile up the creek, according to the cipher," he said, "there's what Hsi Yan called a 'crumbled hillside,' and a burnt tree; and fifty paces west of the tree there's a flat rock. The 'opening,' whatever it may be, is under the flat rock."

Chen-shu abruptly turned to Java Dick and spoke in an undertone—and Bob Kingsley, watching, saw Java Dick nod his head and grin. Then Chen-shu clapped his hands authoritatively.

Again Bob Kingsley looked toward the door. Verna was no longer there. The last in, she was the first gone. The room was emptying. The doorway was crowded with Chinamen chattering excitedly now, and already on the way out.

He had not moved. He did not move now, as Chen-shu, who was the last to go, spoke from the doorway.

"Will the Heaven-Born have patience for a little while?" Chen-shu implored with mock obsequiousness. "There are arrangements to make so that he may be fittingly accommodated in accordance with his high estate; but before morning all will be ready and he will go aboard the ship that Java Dick is honored to place at the disposal of his High Eminence. What the Heaven-Born has said about Luala, and about the creek, cannot be denied; and so all who were here and who listened with delighted ears, and the maiden, and also one other who yearns to feast his eyes upon the treasure, will journey together with the Heaven-Born to Luala in the hope that all his words were true."

The door closed—a key turned in the lock.

For a space Bob Kingsley stood motionless. Then, mechanically, he stooped and righted the overturned stool. He sat down, and, with his elbows on his knees, his chin cupped in his hands, stared stonily in front of him.

It was four days to Luala. In four days, something might happen. That was all. There wasn't any other chance.

They Examine the Pendant

KATIE'S excited query as to what Miss Lincoln would think when she missed the chain with its secret pendant brought me to a realization that I must lose no time in examining the costly bauble with its astonishing miniature. But I took a few seconds to answer her question. From experience I knew that the best way of keeping my little maid's garrulous tongue in check was to make her feel that she shared a secret understanding with me.

"I don't think she ever will know it is gone, Katie," I said, "unless you or I tell her. Before I left the Larches, the physician gave her an opiate and she probably will not awaken for hours. You see she never would have lost it except for the unusual coolness of this morning. Usually in this Summer weather she wears no scarf and always keeps her hand near the chain to make sure of its safety. But this morning she had her scarf tightly wrapped around her neck and her motor coat on when she came in, and she kept them there while Jim was lighting a fire. Then you came in with the telephone message about her aunt dying, and I saw her catch at her throat as if she were choking. In all probability she snapped the chain then without noticing it in her excitement. As soon as I have examined this very closely I shall take it over to her room and slip it into her clothing. Mrs. Tiver and I had to put her into bed with her coat and dress on—she was too chilled and exhausted to undress—so I am sure she never will suspect. Now will you please ask Mrs. Underwood to come to my room? Make some excuse, so that no one guesses what you are asking her. I am going directly there now."

"I tell her right away queeck," Katie said, hurrying through the door, and three minutes later I was locking my door after Lillian's entrance.

"Eleanor Lincoln dropped that chain and pendant this morning," I began abruptly. "I'm sure she had not missed them when the physician sent her off to sleep with an opiate—she probably won't awaken for hours—so we have plenty of time to examine the thing and get it back into her clothing before she wakens."

I felt a sneaking kinship with my melodramatic little maid as I held back a revelation of the miniature I had discovered until we were seated at opposite sides of a small table with the chain and the double pendant laid out between us.

"My sainted aunt!" Lillian ejaculated as her eyes rested on the costly case which our young neighbor of The Larches so sedulously had concealed. "So there was a secret pendant after all! Just look at that thing! Why, it's worth a king's ransom. No wonder she was nervous about it. Her life wouldn't be worth a sixpence if certain underworld gentry knew about that bauble and figured killing her was the only way to get it."

"Look at the inside of it," I said, trying to keep my voice calm. But I was miserably conscious that my request ended in a nervous squeak as I pressed the spring and displayed the miniature.

Characteristically, Lillian made no comment upon my disclosure for fully half a minute, although she had been volubly ejaculatory at the costliness of the case enclosing the startling picture. She took the miniature in her hand and scanned it closely. Then she laid it down and looked at me gravely.

"So little Mrs. Townsend was on the right track after all," she commented quietly.

My memory flashed back to the day when little Mrs. Townsend, of the Southampton Summer colony, had brought me the photograph taken from a famous painting in a European gallery which had borne so striking a resemblance to Eleanor Lincoln and the dog Fedor, and which we had guessed was the explanation of the girl's reluctance to have Dicky make drawings of her in a similar pose with the beautiful wolf-hound. We had managed to sidetrack Mrs. Townsend's curious conjectures, but I knew that the puzzle the picture presented had remained in Lillian's mind as in mine.

"Then you agree with me," I queried, "that Eleanor Lincoln is really the——"

Lillian put up a warning hand.

"Don't speak that name yet, even to me," she warned.—Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

THIS was Saturday and St. Patrick's Day and we didn't have to go looking for Podgeon and his bunch, because they came looking for us.

When I got my other work done and was on the way out to milk the cows Jubilee was sniffing at a basket that was setting down on the ground by the back steps, and I took an old newspaper out of the top of it to see what was in it and there was a pail full of eggs my mother had bought off the country boy, so I carried them out to the barn with me, and set them on the feed box whilst I finished milking. Then the bunch came and Banty saw the eggs and said: "It is funny how anyone cant' squeese an egg hard enough to break it isn't it?" I said: "The strongest man in the world can't break a good egg that way." Feeble said: "Do you mean to tell me I'm not strong enough to break an egg by squeezing it?" I said, "Not a good egg." She said: "You're nuts!" And Banty handed her one out of the basket.

Feeble put the egg between her hands and clasped her fingers together and squeezed, and some of the egg went up both of her arms, and some of it went in her face, and the rest of it went in Banty's face, for she slammed it there because he was standing grinning at her. I don't think our stable ever did smell as bad as that not even when my aunt went out there and found the skunk I had shot in a box. They both went to the house to wash up, and when I had went in and fed my face we all took as many eggs as we could get in our pockets and started for the stable factory to chunk them at rats where their smell wouldn't be noticed. And as we were crossing the vacant lot we heard a yell, and there come Podgeon and his bunch looking for trouble because it was St. Patrick's Day. I got an egg in each hand and told the bunch to not throw till they were right onto us but Feeble got nervous and threw at the redheaded boy on her side of the bunch and hit Podgeon who was on my side right in the forehead, and he stopped like he had been kicked in the belly a limburger cheese, and then we cut loose with all we had, and before they got their hands on us we had them smeared, and then we turned around and skun out, and they didn't follow us only to Miss Parmers' gate.

We went in her house and watched them through the window. After they went we played ball till it was milking time and watched for them to come back but they had enough. We had a fine day, but tomorrow is Sunday school.

What Would You Do In The Gas Company's Place?

Suppose you had to wait three or four years to find out what your job would pay or what you would get for your goods. And suppose, all this time someone was proclaiming himself your opponent and doing all he could to mislead your customers or give you a "bad name" with your employer. Would you regard it as fair?

Suppose your expenses and all the other demands upon you were constantly increasing while your wages, salary, income or sales in business remained stationary or perhaps declined. Do you think you could make a permanent plan as to the future? Would you feel encouraged to go ahead?

Your Gas Company is patiently striving to carry on despite opposition inspired by personal ambition. The Gas Company has pursued this course in the belief that sooner or later the public would see the truth and take action to see that fairness is done.

There is nothing unreasonable in the Gas Company's rate request. It involves simply a charge of $1.00 for the first 500 cubic feet or any part thereof and 60c net per thousand cubic feet thereafter. Other cities are paying as much and more. The average rate for the United States is $1.22 per thousand cubic feet and this is for 560 heat unit gas compared with 1040 heat unit gas now supplied in Marion.

You cannot develop Marion without gas and there is no reason why it should not be supplied in reliable and efficient quantities assuring full use for all heat purposes. All the company asks is the same chance any individual or business concern must have to "make good."

This is a business matter and not a political game. You want to buy gas and the Gas Company wants to sell it. Should you go about this in a manner different from other buying and selling transactions?

Will you help bring this question to a prompt conclusion for the good of Marion and make way for progress?

Central Christians Win County Cage Title From Epworth

Teams Fight Hard For Loop Honors

Geissler Leads Champions to 35-30 Victory Over Methodists, with High Score of 19 Points; Surprise Is Given to Many Fans

BY KARL R. M'ELROY
Sports Editor

A game will go down in the annals of Marion basketball history as one of the hardest fought and closest contests in many years. This game was played last night at the Y. M. C. A. when the Central Christian five won the championship of the Marion County Sunday School Basketball League by defeating Epworth, 35 to 30.

Every minute of the fray found each team battling its utmost to put across a victory that would bring the highest honor in the county league.

Although leading at the close of every quarter, the Christians did not have an easy time of it. In practically every period Epworth managed to get the lead but were unable to keep it.

Each team had an airtight defense that made scoring under the basket difficult. Both teams took many long shots, some being made from past the center of the floor.

Geissler Is High

The individual honor and glory of the tourney, I believe, should go to Geissler. He scored no less than 19 points from eight field goals and three fouls. Art Yazel, who starred for the Christian team in other games this week, accounted for nine points.

Biddle was high scorer for Epworth counting 11 points. Five of these were made from free throws. Fetter was next in line with six points.

The victory of the Christians comes as a more or less surprise to most fans. That team had played two hard games before meeting Epworth.

At the end of the first quarter Central Christians held a 7 to 4 lead. Epworth cut down the gap to 14 to 12 at the half and to 23 to 22 at the three-quarters mark.

By defeating the C., D. & M. cagers the Marion Business College last night recovered sufficient form to win second place in the Marion Industrial Basketball league. The games last night brought to a close the regular scheduled games.

With the season at an end, but one tie exists in the league standings. Winning over the Silk Mill, 35 to 19, Excavators tied that team for fifth place.

Osgood heads the standings having won 10 games and lost two. The Business College won nine and lost three. Malleable cagers are in last place with only two wins to their credit out of 12 contests played.

The Business College had no trouble in defeating the C., D. & M., 28 to 18. The collegians jumped into the lead at the start of the fray.

The 24 to 7 victory of Huber over Malleable was expected but the defeat of Silk Mill by the Excavators was a surprise. Gillis and Leffler were the only two players on the Excavators who scored. The former counted 18 points while Leffler scored 17.

Score in Star Tournament Still Heads All Others

With the Star's foul shooting contest drawing to a close this afternoon, indications point to a victory for Albert Chaney who scored 20 free throws out of a possible 25.

In case his record is not broken this afternoon, he will receive a regulation professional basketball.

The following are scores rolled last night: Carroll Carvis, 10; Vaughn Errett, 12; Jack Hudson, 10; Paul Hoffman, 11; Robert Robbins, 6; Charles Ballinger, 3; Francis Robbins, 5; Joe Kelleher, 6; Edward Bray, 7.

Championship Crowns Expensive for Mickey Walker

BY FRANK G. MENKE

MICKEY WALKER is supposed to have ambitions to become light heavyweight champ of the universe.

If that's all true, then Mickey undoubtedly is preparing to fight free gratis for nothing—or even pay for the rare privilege.

Mickey is that way when hunting titles. The New Jersey Irishman had speared two crowns in his hectic lifetime—and each time he ended up with nothing but the crown.

Quite a few years ago Mickey sought conflict with Jack Britton, then welterweight chieftain. Jack was willing—provided he got so much dough. The sum was so large that Tex Rickard quickly calculated there'd be nothing left for Mickey if he agreed to Jack's terms.

"Shave it a bit, Jack," asked Rickard.

"Not a dime—I'm a union champion," responded Britton.

When Mickey learned that he said:

"That's okay with me; he gets the cash—and a beating. But I'll get the crown—and I'll cash in later."

Mickey won and that was that.

In the after years Mickey desired to mingle with Tiger Flowers in Chicago, whereupon Walk Miller, the champion's manager, demanded a $50,000 guarantee for Flowers' end. The promoter wouldn't agree. But Jack Kearns, manager for Walker, did agree. He guaranteed the purse.

Kearns posted $15,000 which was to go to Flowers in case the "gate" did not net Flowers $50,000 for his end. The "gate" was only enough to pay Flowers $35,300. So Miller speared the $15,000 and made the Kearns-Walker combinations produce $1,700 more to make it an even $50,000.

Therefore it cost Mickey and his manager $16,700 to win that title.

And now, Mickey wants to be light heavy champion.

Well, what price light heavy crown?

TWO NEW PLAYERS MUST BE BUILT UP

Keystone Pair Just One of Many Problems Faced by St. Louis Browns

Editor's Note: This is the eleventh of a series of articles by Davis J. Walsh, dealing with developments in various major league training camps.

* * *

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 17—Unless a couple of bright young men from Tulsa, Oklahoma, come to the rescue, there is going to be murder done at Sportmans Park, St. Louis, this year, Dan Howley informed the writer today. Being a helpful soul and possessed of intimate information on the subject, he is able to supply not only the time and the place but the identity of the proposed corpse. The latter will be the St. Louis Browns, of which Dan is manager.

"Yes, sir," he said, thoroughly agreeing with himself. "If Otis Brannon and Ralph Kress don't come through as a second base combination, it's going to be just too bad."

The development of a keystone pair, a few stray pitchers and the need of an outfielder are a few of Daniel's more pressing or depressing problems. He seems to have just a few more of them than McGuffey's advanced algebra. Walter Gerber, his ageing shortstop has become passe. Oscar Melillo, the second baseman, has bright's disease.

Brannon And Kress

Up from Tulsa bob those bright young men who are willing to start at the bottom to wit; Brannon of Green Brier, Ark., and Kress of Berkeley, Calif. It may be mentioned that Daniel thinks he has something with this pair and, in so far as Kress is concerned, Jack Hendricks, of the Reds, agrees with him. Jack thinks Kress is Glenn Wright all over again. As for Brannon, Daniel gives him no less than he concedes Kress.

The development of a second baseman and a shortstop at one and the same time generally is regarded by baseball men as something that isn't being done. However it was done two years ago by Miller Huggins with Lazzeri and Koenig and that pair never had seen each other before. Kress and Brannon made three double plays against the Reds. Still, second base and shortstop must remain one of Daniel's many problems.

Another is his pitching. He has Sam Gray, the Hillsboro, Texas right hander who had a big year with the Athletics several seasons back and then blew.

Ogden May Produce

Much is expected from Johnny Ogden, who has escaped from Baltimore at last. Alvin Crowder and Dick Coffman, obtained from the Washington Senators, also are regarded with favor. Walter Stewart, the Pleasant Hill, Tenn., left-hander, is back again.

Ernie Nevers, the Stanford man, has a bad arm. Ed Strelecki and George Blaeholder, up from Milwaukee and Tulsa respectively, looked quite well against the Reds but I don't think Howley has too many illusions about either of them. He did speak well of Walter Brock, of Tulsa and Decatur, Ill.

In addition to Brannon and Kress, the other regulars of the infield are Lon Blue, obtained in the Detroit deal, at first base; and Frankie O'Rourke, last year's regular, at third. Both will do very nicely. So will the catchers, Wally Schang, Steve O'Neill and merely middle aged Clyde Manion.

Gerber Slips

Gerber, of the infielders, has slipped. Bill Mullen has a bad knee. Ernest Peters, Oakland, Calif., semi-pro is very raw. Guy Sturdy, first baseman up from Tulsa and Sherman, Tex., hits well but I gather that he hasn't quite found out yet just what it is all about. Paul Richards, of Waxahachie, Texas, a shortstop, isn't ready.

Oliver Sax, third baseman from Scranton, Penn., stole 61 bases in the New York-Pennsylvania league last year, but it seems that, like old man Twist's son, Oliver wants some more, only this time it is experience.

Daniel will have an outfield if nothing happens to Fred Schulte, Heine Manush and Earl McNeeley. It seems that the rules require three outfielders in the line-up, so Phil Ball got Daniel just that many. Philip did go so far as to produce Alvin McCoy, Oakland, Calif., semi-pro; Morris Badgro, University of Southern California football star, and Fred Bennett, of Tulsa.

TEAMS ENTER FINAL ROUND OF TOURNEY

Eight High School Quintets Fight Way Through Contests

Columbus, March 17—Canton McKinley, Dayton Stivers, Columbus Central and Akron South cage teams are preparing to enter the semi-final round of play in the sixth annual high school basketball tournament of the class A division at the Coliseum this afternoon after emerging victorious from the opening day's eliminations held yesterday afternoon and last night.

By virtue of their victories yesterday four teams of the class B section, New Concord, Marysville, Manchester and Hillsboro-Marshall were also scheduled to mix in the pre-final contests starting at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

In the feature of the class A games, last night Canton McKinley won a close decision over East Liverpool after the game had run into an extra period. The final score was 29 to 25.

Dayton Stivers and Columbus Central loomed as possible final round contestants in their play while defeating Fremont and Toledo Libby respectfully. Aided by the brilliant work of Hosket, center who made 22 points during the game, Stivers had no trouble in eliminating Fremont, winners of the Northwest District title, 36 to 20 yesterday afternoon.

Central Beats Libbey

Columbus Central held sway over Libbey for the greater part of the contest which ended 36 to 25. Ford, guard and Waters, forward advanced the lead of the Columbus team in the final periods after the first half had ended with Central holding a one point advantage, 15 to 14.

Two games played within a space of 12 hours proved too much for Hamilton which fell before the crushing attack of Akron South by a score of 27 to 25. A lead of more than 10 points was shortened by brilliant shooting of the Hamilton County team in the final minutes of the game. Hamilton won the right to meet Akron in first round last night by swamping Hillsboro 35 to 7 yesterday morning in a preliminary contest.

The class B contest between Kunkle and New Concord, both teams playing their second contests yesterday ended with the Muskingum County team leading 15 to 14. Hillsboro-Marshall won over Margaretta of Castalia, 26 to 21 in another class B contest yesterday afternoon.

New Concord will meet Manchester and Marysville will battle Hillsboro Marshal in class B while Akron clashes with Stivers and Columbus Central with McKinley in the class A semi finals this afternoon. Finals will be held tonight.

MONEY TO LOAN

5%
Why Pay More Than Is Necessary?

Does your farm earn you so much money that you like to pay high interest, commissions and bonuses on your mortgage.

By far the majority of farmers can't afford such generosity. Nearly half a million farmers have borrowed more than a billion dollars from the Federal Land Banks so as to get the lowest rate possible and a loan which is adapted to the farming business.

Loans run for thirty-six years, bears 5% interest, and are non-callable so long as semi-annual installments are paid. These semi-annual installments include ½% in addition to the interest for the purpose of killing off the loan at the end of the loan period—Federal Land Bank loans can't be beaten.

UNDER BOND ON CHARGE OF FORCING ATTENTIONS

Hamilton, March 17—Fred Birkel, 47, Lemaxmith, of Middletown, was under $1,000 bond today pending a hearing in juvenile court next week on charges of attempting to force his attentions on Helen Singhoffen, 17-year-old Trenton girl.

The girl's parents maintain that she and Birkel have been "keeping company" for some time, and that he has told her that she must not have other men friends. Birkel's wife declares, however, that she has 47 letters written by Miss Singhoffen to her husband, as proof that it was the girl who made the advances.

VOTE EIGHT VESSELS

House Action Unexpected and Furnishes New Dispute Topic

Washington, March 17—Unexpected action of the House in voting to require the building of eight of 15 cruisers in government navy yards today furnished a new subject for congressional dispute over naval problems.

The amendment, adopted on the motion of Representative Dallinger, Republican of Massachusetts, is expected to be opposed by administration leaders when the bill reaches the Senate.

The entire measure, carrying authorization for the expenditure of $274,000,000 for 15 cruisers and one airplane carrier, was scheduled to be passed in the House today. An overwhelming sentiment for it was disclosed in votes on amendments late yesterday.

First in the d.p.m. test!

If you want to know which cleaner will do the best work for you, find out the results of the recent d.p.m. (dirt per minute) tests.

These tests, made with the Hoover and three other popular cleaners, showed that in approximately twenty minutes of cleaning the Hoover removed as much dirt as any of the others removed in eighty minutes, and that in the ordinary cleaning time for a nine-by-twelve rug the Hoover removed from 60% to 80% more dirt!

The oftener a rug is Hoover-cleaned, the longer it lasts. For the Hoover effectively removes not only the surface dust and lint, but it gets the deeply-embedded, nap-cutting grit against which ordinary cleaning methods are powerless. And with this greater, more protective cleanliness comes also a greater rug beauty, through the brightening of rug colors and straightening and lifting of the nap.

You can have your choice of two types of Hoovers—the famous Model 700 and the new popular-priced Hoover. We will make you a liberal allowance for your old cleaner. And we will gladly demonstrate the Hoover any day in your home.
